Given today’s ever-changing threat environment, preparing for and training employees to cope with workplace violence should be a key piece of an organization’s incident response planning.

A Unique Training Opportunity

Providence Emergency Management Agency Office of Homeland Security and the National Protection and Programs Directorate Office of Infrastructure Protection within the U.S Department of Homeland Security, with coordination and support from the Rhode Island Emergency Management Agency, is holding a one-day Security Workshop to enhance response to and awareness of an active shooter event:

- Educating participants on the history of active shooter events.
- Describing common behavior, conditions, and situations associated with active shooters.
- Fostering communication between infrastructure owners and operators and local emergency response teams; this includes discussion of interoperability, communications protocols, and best practices for planning, preparedness, and response.

Building Emergency Planning Capabilities

The event will also describe how to incorporate key elements of successful incident management into planning efforts, including:

- Communicating with and accounting for employees;
- Building familiarity with local responders and knowing their capabilities;
- Coordinating with first responders before, during, and after an incident; and
- Integrating public affairs into incident management.
