

2023 IFEA WEBINAR SERIES

IFEA Webinar on Demand

Creating a Sensory Inclusive Event Experience and Accessibility for those with Invisible Disabilities

Sean Culkin, Board of Directors

KultureCity

Ted Baroody, President

Norfolk Festevents, Norfolk, VA

Is it possible to make special events that are meant to overload your senses more sensory friendly? Yes, it is! Learn more from the nation's leading nonprofit on sensory accessibility and acceptance, Kulture City. Hear stories and examples from some of the world's largest events to every day festivals.

Sean Culkin is an autism self-advocate and public speaker that has served on the KultureCity board since 2019. As a board member, Sean uses his personal experiences and expertise to both train and certify teams and venues as "Sensory Inclusive". He also assists in the development and implementation of KultureCity's global initiatives ranging from emergency services training to career development programs.

Ted Baroody is a graduate of North Carolina State University of Raleigh, North Carolina. After college he moved to Norfolk to start his own small sports marketing company, Victory Promotions. After a couple of years of power boat racing production under Victory Promotions, he served as Marketing Director for a group of local radio stations in Virginia Beach for 5 years. From 1996 to the present, he has worked for Norfolk Festevents, Ltd. which he now serves as CEO. Ted also works with many non-profit organizations as a volunteer, event coordinator and as a board member.

Length: 60 Minutes

Webinar on Demand will be sent as an online link along with any supporting document provided.

All IFEA Webinars must be purchased and viewed within the same calendar year.

Questions: Contact Nia Hovde, CFEE, Vice President/Director of Marketing & Communications – Email: nia@ifea.com